

First graders were recording data in Math class. They sorted and recorded the colors of Fruit Loops they were given and then compared the numbers to see which color was the most popular and least popular color in their pile.

